THE APPLE ORCHARD

He floated upon a gentle sea of rippling green.

Where little yellow butterflies danced drunk pirouettes on the windy stage. Reading the words written by fluffy white poets who wrote ever changing prose across an endless blue page.

'Apples are funny things,' he said. 'You can never be sure of what you are getting until you take that first bite'.

His hand reaches slowly for the half empty vodka bottle.

'This afternoon I discovered an apple so wonderfully perfect, I wouldn't be surprised if it came from the outstretched hand of a wicked old witch.'

She pulled up her white cotton panties, brushing an ant from a grass stained knee.

'I've been called many things before but never an apple', she laughed.
